

PolicyWise Underwriting Reference Guide - Synthetic

Document Code: PW-UW-2026-01

Synthetic-data notice: This fictional document is for RAG development, testing, demonstrations, and training only. It is not a real insurance contract.

1. Purpose

Underwriting evaluates information relevant to whether and on what terms a risk may be insured. This guide is educational and does not make real underwriting decisions.

2. Health Information

Health underwriting may consider declared medical history, age, proposed sum insured, occupation, and relevant medical evidence, subject to applicable rules.

3. Motor Information

Motor underwriting may consider vehicle type, age, usage, location, claims history, modifications, and requested covers.

4. Travel Information

Travel underwriting may consider destination, trip duration, traveller age, planned activities, and requested benefits.

5. Possible Outcomes

A synthetic underwriting review may result in standard acceptance, acceptance with modified terms, request for additional information, postponement, or decline.

6. Data Minimization

Only information reasonably necessary for the underwriting purpose should be collected and retained according to applicable requirements.

7. Human Review

High-impact insurance decisions should not be inferred solely from a RAG answer. Human review and the applicable decision process remain necessary.

8. Explainability

Material underwriting requirements or modified terms should be communicated clearly to the applicant through the appropriate process.

9. Testing Note

This document helps distinguish policy-understanding questions from underwriting or decision-making questions outside the assistant's intended scope.
